2020

Welcome the new year with open arms and hope.
Mixed emotions are present, as another decade flies by.
Surrounded by the ones we love, we share a kiss and embrace.

With that warm embrace, all of the memories from the year come flooding back as love overfills your heart. I hope we experience life, this time by our own terms, as we present ourselves and share presents.

As we embrace
the past with a goodbye, to the already forgotten year, we hope our resolutions are done with love.

Maybe this time, we will love all that we do and be present with our beloved. With hope, comes anxiety as we brace the upcoming uncertainty of the year.
If only there were time that we could buy.

As we see familiar faces pass by, we begin to miss and hold a love for one of the best or worst year of our lives. Choose to live in the present or dwell over the past. Embrace our mistakes and never give up hope.

May all you ever hoped for, be accomplished in 2020. Say bye to the old you and embrace a new, improved person. Love the life you build. Every day is a present.
This is your year.

Embrace the love and hope that the present flies by into the new year.
